

Registrar Update

29 April 2009

Doctors with Altitude

AGPT and the Royal Flying Doctors Service of Australia (RFDS) have joined up to offer a limited number of training posts for AGPT registrars. This fantastic post will give registrars the opportunity to be actively involved in a unique clinical experience based out of a handful of selected RFDS locations across Australia. For eligibility information and how to apply for a Doctors with Altitude training post, download the brochure on the AGPT Training Posts section of the website.

Registrar Research Workshop fully funded places

Are you an AGPT registrar interested in research? Why not apply for one of the 25 fully funded places to this fantastic workshop! The Registrar Research Workshop is an annual three day intensive program aimed at introducing interested registrars to research and what it entails in the primary health care setting. Academic GPs will guide the participants through the life of a project from formulating a research question to the dissemination of results. This year the workshop will be held in Hobart from 18 to 20 June 2009.

With less than two weeks until applications close make sure you don't miss out! Download an application form from the Academic Training page. Applications close 8 May 2009.

Recurring Academic Posts

Are you interested in doing a research project but don't know where to start? Why not undertake a recurring academic registrar post. These new recurring posts differ from standard Academic Posts (below) in that they aim to provide opportunities for registrars who have had little research exposure by providing a post in an existing research project. Posts are currently available at the University of Melbourne; University of Sydney – Western Clinical School; University of Newcastle; University of Adelaide; and University of Western Australia. Standard Academic Posts - applications close 30 April!!

Applications close this Thursday 30 April for standard Academic Posts starting in July and August 2009. Academic posts are undertaken for a period of six months, with the aim to enable registrars to develop skills in research, teaching, project work and critical evaluation of research. The term must provide an experience relevant to general practice and/or primary care. Registrars are expected to develop understandings of research and teaching environments, as well as the processes and benefits of cross-disciplinary research. Download an application form here.
